The women's team spent much of the weekend enjoying themselves in the water. The Italian Olympic Federation named its women's soccer team the first non-European country to be inducted into the Olympic Hall of Fame. The team was inducted in the Silver category on June 10, 2012, at a ceremony in London's Olympic Stadium. The Italian flag was removed from the Olympic flag. Visa policies did not allow women to travel to London. The medals were brought to Italy on a private air flight. The announcement came the same day the Italian men's soccer team, which won its third straight gold medal, was named the best in the world in a FIFA world ranking. The induction will be hard to top if the women can repeat their performance. They have seven Olympic gold medals already in the cabinet. The only thing that will top their fans on their return to Italy will be questions about coach Cesare Prandelli. He has been mentioned as a possible head coach at Juventus. Bayesian modeling of interactions between multiple age-of-onset cancers. When cancers develop, there is often an interaction between them that is important for their prognosis. This article considers the problem of estimating both these interactions and cancer-specific survival (CSS) times across multiple cancers. We develop a Bayesian framework based on a relational model for multiple cancer events. This model can be used to assess whether there are any interactions present and to estimate the distribution of cancer-specific survival times between multiple cancer events. We present results based on data from the Surveillance, Epidemiology, and End Results (SEER) registry for the 1973-2005 period. This is a high quality data source for studying cancer survival in the United States, especially for cancers with long follow-up times. The data set considered here contains 20 cancers and 4892 subjects. We demonstrate that the model is consistent, displays little bias and provides reasonable estimates of the true survival probabilities. We also develop a Python-based MCMC algorithm to efficiently simulate from the joint posterior distribution of the model parameters. The algorithm and relevant computational and data structures are provided on GitHub. f30f4ceada
